Hancock shrimpers face ice shortage problems

By BRENT MACEY

Disgruntled members of the Hancock County Fishermen's Association met Tuesday at Bayou Cadet Harbor to discuss their problems in acquiring badly needed ice for shrimp fishing. Several members admitted to having to stay in the harbor because ice could not be purchased without facing high costs, or transporting the ice long distances themselves. The fishermen have a lease with Post's Seafood, a company with headquarters in Gulfport and a branch office in Bayou Cadet. Post's, under terms of a lease from the Fishermen's Association for space at the harbor, agrees to provide the fishermen with diesel fuel, ice, and a market for their shrimp catch, the fishermen say. Kenny May, operator at Post's in Bayou Cadet who was present at the meeting, said a number of trailers needed to truck ice from the ice plant in Gulfport are broken down. He added, "We have been all over the state trying to find ice. We just cannot get any." Fishermen say no ice has been transported to the bayou for several days. As a result, many fishermen have had to travel to Gulfport themselves, by car or boat, to load up with ice. They stated they have been limited in the past to the amount of ice they can purchase and now complain the prices have also increased. The fisherman also stated Post's was not selling to everybody at the harbor when he did have ice. May stated he sold ice to the shrimp fishermen who sold their catches to the company. "That's only common sense," May said. The fishermen replied Post's contract stated he had to sell ice to anybody regardless of whether they

Governor urges Coast Rotarians to work for improved education

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Governor William Winter, speaking Thursday to Gulf Coast Rotarians at Keesler's Officers Club, said something is wrong with our educational system. Winter stated, "We have got to improve our educational system. When we have 58 boys and girls out of a 100 drop out after high school, that is ten times higher than the next lowest state." "I visit Parchman Prison and 70 percent of the inmates are illiterate. We have the largest number of rejects in the military service. We can do something," Winter added. The governor then said that it is a proven fact that states with kindergarten have a much better experience with later education. "Kindergartens are one of the most significant things we could do to help education."

Winter said he is trying to get some of the best qualified people he can find to work in his administration. Having spoken earlier in the day to sheriffs, circuit clerks and law enforcement agencies personnel, the governor touched on the problems of criminals.

Winter allowed, "Only five years ago 2,000 persons were in the state's penal institutions, today there are over 4,000. We are trying to work out a solution. We have an explosion of criminals and Harrison and Jackson Counties have 15 percent of the criminals in state institutions today."

One of the major items Winter said he is trying to do is improve the image of Mississippi in the eyes of the people of other states.

In a recent visit to New York the governor spoke to publishers and editors of several major magazines and wire services about the good things Mississippi has to offer, trying to get them to tell the real truth about the state.

A special recognition was given to those involved in the recent Miss USA contest by the governor.

Winter stated, "I will do whatever I can for us to continue to have the pageant on the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

Another problem Winter noted was that the state was rated number 50 in per capita income and was further from the 49th state, Arkansas, than ten years ago.

The governor ended his talk by saying, "We are sitting in the most

In 'landmark' public trust trial

State's boundary report still not available to county land owners

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Mississippi tidal flow study was requested for the third time Friday by attorneys representing Cinque Bambini Partnership in an ongoing trial which may determine the location of state and private waterfront property lines.

Bambini presented results of its study to defending attorneys before the trial began Monday, but the state has yet to produce its final tidal analysis.

The plaintiffs requested the study so their expert witness could review the material before testifying, but the state's final report has not yet been furnished.

Monday the defendants stated the reports were not available because they were 'cumbersome.' Wednesday and Friday, a Bambini attorney requested the state information for review and was informed on both occasions the study would be completed that night.

The Gulfport trial primarily involves the partnership located at Holly Bluff in Hancock County and the state.

Bambini is suing the state to establish ownership of some 600 acres of land outlined as wetland areas in a Mississippi Marine Resources Council map prepared in the early 1970's.

MMRC was the predecessor of the State Bureau of Marine Resources headquartered in Long Beach.

The map was designed to illustrate the mean high tide mark which may indicate state ownership lines.

A statewide interpretation of the public trust doctrine, derived from English common law, may also be determined by the action. This doctrine dictates that the state owns, in trust of the public, the sea along its shores and extends up rivers and bays to the mean high water mark.

An air conditioning failure in Hancock County's Bay St. Louis Courthouse prompted a move of the Chancery Court trial to Harrison County's Gulfport Courthouse.

Chancellor William L. Stewart, of Gulfport, Division One—Eighth Chancery Court Division of Mississippi is presiding over the action and will decide the case.

Plaintiffs in the suit include Lidia and Carol Allen, owners of one-half the mineral rights of the Bambini property; Harry Kellerher, a neighboring riverfront land owner; and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Houston, Tex., a company leasing a northern portion of the partnership's property.

Joining the state as defendants is Saga Petroleum Co. of Houston which holds mineral leases for some 600 acres from the state within the southern portion of the Bambini property claim.

The property in question is roughly 2,400 acres bounded on the north and east by Jourdan River, one the south by Bayou La Croix and on the west by Hwy. 603. I-10 crosses the center of the land area east to west.

Bambini contends it owns the property claimed by the state based on professional studies by Paul T. O'Hagan of Craben-Thompson and

Winter, officials discuss coast jail overcrowding

By BRENT MACEY

Mississippi Governor William Winter Thursday agreed to work with all entities involved in correctional in-sistutions across the state to help relieve over crowding conditions.

Some 337 non-violent state prisoners have been granted executive clemency by the governor. Pending the development of some type of program by state and local officials, those prisoners may be granted 90-day suspensions in the future.

The governor meet with officials from Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, George, Greene and Forrest Counties Thursday to discuss jail issues and receive feed back from the officials.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said he did not feel any issues were resolved during the meeting.

"It was more of a talk and discussion about what can be done with the jail situation," Peterson said.

Winter told the group he had no specific solutions to offer but stated the 'overcrowding problem is a problem that will have to be dealt with.'

He noted a new building being built at the Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman to house 1,500 prisoners is ahead of schedule.

That building was originally scheduled to open the first part of next year.

Winter said that is the last building to be built at Parchman because of the difficulty in staffing the institution.

He stated the counties will be considered in the future to house 'satellite prisons.'

The meeting in the Harrison County Courthouse was opened to discussion

Fleet blessing slated July 4

By BRENT MACEY

The Bayou Cadet Blessing of the fleet is scheduled Saturday, July 4 at 2 p.m. Shrimp fishermen have added a new dimension to this year's occasion. Plates of shrimp will be sold for $1 per plate with proceeds from the sale going to benefit John Santalla Jr., a five month old New Year's baby who has remained in Gulfport Memorial hospital since birth.

Santalla developed a lung disease after his first month in the hospital. Oxygen equipment must be purchased by his guardians if he has any hope of returning home.

In addition, some $49,000 of hospital bills have accumulated during his five month stay in the intensive care unit.

Fishermen, during a meeting of the Hancock County Fishermen's Association Wednesday night, agreed to have each boat donate 30 pounds of shrimp at sizes no smaller than 40 to 50 shrimp per pound.

Many fishermen agreed they would donate more than 30 pounds for the benefit.

Those purchasing shrimp plates will be eligible to win 100 pounds of fresh shrimp.

Tickets for the shrimp plates are available at local stores, businesses, and banks.

The blessing will be sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, with trophies awarded to first, second and third place winners. In addition, a $50 prize will accompany the first place trophy with $25 accompanying second and third place winners.

Ronnie Ferrel, Fishermen's Association president, said the boats will pass by a reviewing stand set up on a pier located on the bayou leading out of the harbor.

Bishop Howze from Biloxi will be stationed in a boat just outside the harbor to bless each boat as they enter the bay.

Ferrel said a policeman will be stationed in the parking lot area of Bayou Cadet and warned people not to park cars and trailers in the parking lot area of Bayou Cadet.

He stated the public launch will be open during the day's activities.

MOTOR BIKE ACCIDENT—Mobile Medical technicians treat Anthony Cardinale in a ditch on the Kiln-Waveland Cutoff Road Thursday after he was struck by a vehicle while traveling on a motor bike. The car was driven by Juanita Loupe as she was traveling on the road at the intersection of Catalina, according to Hancock Deputy Ronnie Cuevas. The youth, a resident of Rt. 1, Box 175, failed to stop at the intersection and Ms. Loupe was unable to avoid hitting him.

Cuevas said. No charges have been filed in the mishap. Cardinale was taken to Hancock General Hospital and later transferred to Gulfport Memorial where he was reported released Friday afternoon by a spokesman. Among those at the scene were Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson, left, Waveland Patrolman Veronica Hattabaugh holding board and passerbys holding canvas to keep the rain off the youth. after the governor made brief introductory remarks.

Winter, questioned on whether he would call a special session of the Legislature to deal with the jail issue, said he had not decided whether to call a special session.

He said the next special session will deal with re-districting only.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling concerning the "double ceiling"—allowing two prisoners in a cell built to accommodate one—was mentioned briefly.

Assistant State Attorney General Roger Googe stated the ruling "may help" the overcrowding problem but added "we can't stack them in like cord wood."

Peterson said last week he also felt the decision could give the counties and state some relief.

District attorney Albert Nacaise said the state and local officials have agreed to a release program. He asked the governor if he would also "take the heat" for releasing inmates on the street.

"I've already had a call this week about releasing an inmate. I know what I will be facing in the future," he said.

The governor nodded yes in response. Nacaise also asked the governor to give a commitment concerning replacing the same number of Harrison County prisoners released from Parchman with the same number of state prisoners now being housed in the Harrison County Jail.

Morris Thigpen, director of Mississippi Department of Corrections, agreed to the "one to one basis" of exchange.

Peterson said Friday he felt Nacaise was also referring to Hancock County concerning the prisoner replacement, since Nacaise is the District Attorney for Hancock County also.

The sheriff said he currently has 12 state inmates in the county jail.

Five of those inmates are serving time for non-violent crimes. Peterson said three of those inmates have been recommended by his office to be in placed on some type of work release program.

Commission asks law changes to eliminate U.S. acid rain

The Mississippi Legislature enacted legislation that provides for means of assuring program abusers that the Department of Public Welfare intends to and can take legal sanctions against those who abuse aid programs intended for the needy.

The act becomes effective July 1.

The bill combines several criminal statutes that pertain to welfare fraud into one statute. It also increases the penalty for welfare fraud from a misdemeanor with a maximum of one year in the county jail and a $1,000 fine for the first offense to a felony with a three year term in the state penitentiary and a $10,000 fine.

The legislature also made it a crime for a person to sell, purchase or alter a food stamp or medicare card; to knowingly sign a false application for the replacement of benefits claiming they were not received; for an employee to misappropriate any assistance; for any person, in contract with the agency, to knowingly submit a false bill for services rendered to a recipient of benefits.

To assist the Department of Welfare in the detection of the acts mentioned above, the legislature created a Fraud Investigation Unit within the agency.

The Fraud Investigation Unit is responsible for conducting investigations and aiding the agency in the detection of fraud or abuse of any program by clients, employees and persons with whom the agency has contracted.

The unit has access to records and information from government and private sources, that enables the investigators to verify client information.

The investigative unit forwards information about possible criminal violations to the appropriate prosecuting authorities.

If requested by the prosecutor, the unit assists in the prosecution of any cases referred to prosecutors.

The legislature granted counties the authority to hire assistant prosecutors to prosecute cases involving fraud in welfare programs.

The Department of Welfare now has the authority to enter into contracts with counties to subsidize the cost of hiring special assistant prosecutors to assist in the prosecution of persons who defraud programs.

The criminal portion of this legislation applies not only to persons who defraud welfare programs but also any federal or state funded assistance programs.

Home'office' area saves time, energy

A well-organized home business center will encourage businesslike practices among family members and save time and energy, says Dr. Julia H. Barnes, family economics and management specialist for the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"The success of your business center depends on how well it is planned and organized," said Dr. Barnes. "It will be easier to be systematic if you plan your center so that incoming transactions, supplies and storing activities follow a sequence."

Organize your business center so that everything has a proper place. Be sure to provide: an area for all incoming or unfinished transactions; ample space to spread out papers; a drawer to store checkbooks, envelopes, greeting cards and address books; and an area to store account books and current receipts and bills.

"One of the most important sections of the home business center is a permanent file to hold papers that need to be kept beyond the current period," said Dr. Barnes. "Two sets of files are useful—one for current transactions and records and one for materials used only occasionally but that need to be kept for reference."

"An index of the filing system placed in the front of each file drawer will help you keep your business in order," added Dr. Barnes.

The files may be divided into main divisions and then subdivisions. The main divisions might be farm business, home and family business, and personal affairs. For a list to use in organizing your file system and home business center, ask your Extension home economist for Information Sheet 675.

We have been told there will be a special treat for those attending the swearing-in of the new Bay St. Louis officials Friday. Judge Ruble Griffin is scheduled to perform the ceremonies for the installation at 10:30 a.m. Friday, July 3.

Those taking office will be Mayor Larry Bennett and Councilmen Wilmer Seymour, Gene Taylor, James Thriffley, Harry Farve and George Seuzeneau.

We are told the new officials are planning a reception with refreshments following the ceremonies.

We hope there will be a big turn-out for the occasion.

It will be good for the electors to give the Bay officials a good impression and the fact that they are concerned with the welfare of the city.

We know there will be a lot of folks taking to the waters fishing next week.

We would like to remind many of you, like ourselves to check and see if our fishing licenses are valid as many expire on June 30th.

We understand law enforcement officials will be doing a lot of checking for valid licenses in addition to proper safety equipment in boats.

We like for everyone to enjoy themselves, but, please be careful.

We have plenty of water, enough for everyone to enjoy themselves, so let us all respect the other guy.

Next Saturday will be the Blessing of the Fleet at Bayou Caddy.

We are told the Fishermen's Association is planning a big event for those attending the extravaganza.

There will be a lot of refreshments and boiled seafood available.

As you all know, this year shrimping has been its best for several years, so this will be a chance for you to get a fill of boiled shrimp.

We think the cost of seafood is high on the Coast, we pay only a small portion to what other areas of our nation pay, when it is available.

Drowning revival effort should continue for hours

With the return of warm weather the pools and beaches reopen for swimmers. Inevitably some of these swimmers will drown.

In trying to help someone who is in trouble in the water, remember to be careful of your own safety.

The drowning person can pull the rescuer down with him. Keep calm and do not overestimate your strength, says the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care.

If the victim is near a pier or edge of the pool hold out your hand or foot. Or toss a life preserver, or extend a pole, board, rope, towel, chair or anything handy.

If the victim is unconscious and you suspect a neck or back injury from diving, place a board under hand and back while he is still in the water to prevent further damage.

Lift him out on the board. Use a boat if the victim is some distance from the shore.

Start artificial breathing at once, before the victim is entire out of the water.

Use the mouth-to-mouth technique. Continue resuscitation on the bank.

First clear the mouth and airway of foreign matter. Tilt victim's head back, pinch his nostrils shut, cover the victim's mouth with your own and give four quick breaths.

Then give approximately 12 breaths per minute, until you see the victim's chest rise.

If the victim's stomach is bloated with swallowed water, put him on his stomach, place both hands on the stomach and lift.

Once breathing is restored, keep victim comfortably warm with blanket, coat or towels. Do not give food or water.

Call an ambulance, or take the victim to the nearest hospital with an emergency room.

If he is still unconscious, have someone else drive so you can continue artificial breathing if necessary.

If there is no pulse, cardiac compression should be started.

To be effective, this requires someone trained in the technique. It must be done at the same time as artificial breathing.

If the resuer is alone, give 15 chest compressions, then two quick breaths.

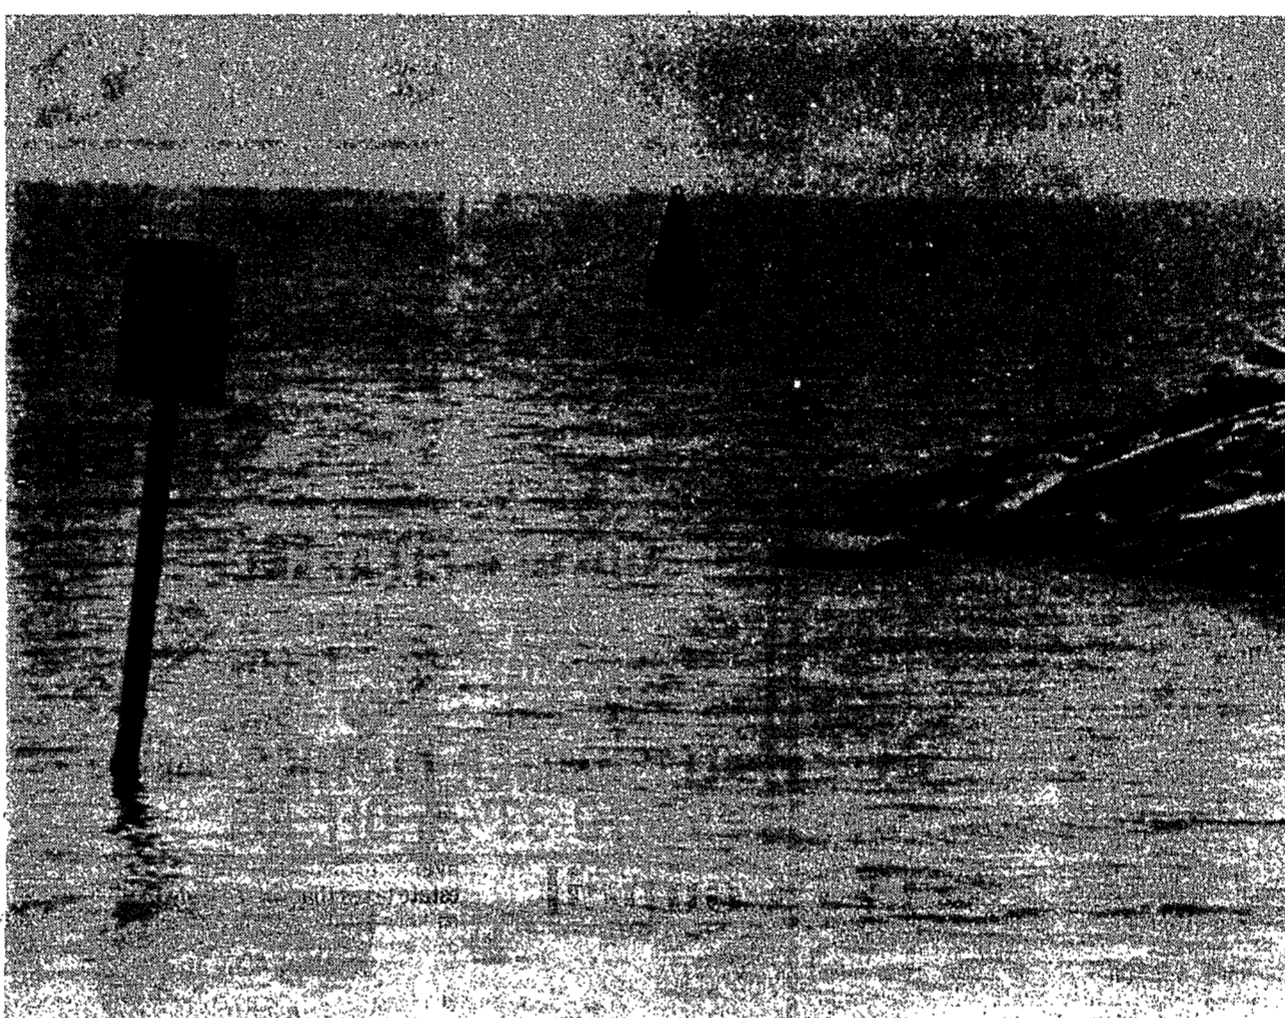

If two rescuers are present, one of them gives five chest compressions for each breath from the other.

People who have been submerged in cold water (below 70 degrees) often can survive without brain damage.

Some victims have been under for as long as 38 minutes and still lived.

Mouth-to-mouth breathing and heart compression must be started as soon as possible and continued for several hours even if the victim appears dead.

BILL FILED TO BOLSTER U.S.
ECONOMY
By CONGRESSMAN
TRENT LOTT

5th District, Mississippi
Innovative ideas on getting the U.S. economic picture back in focus are now being developed. One of the most promising has been filed by my good friend and colleague, Congressman Bill Archer of Texas.

"A strong U.S. economy cannot exist when two vital segments of it face severe problems caused by a lack of capital and the current high cost of capital."

With that statement, Congressman Archer introduced an excellent piece of legislation. The bill, H. R. 1005, confronts problems in the areas of savings institutions and the housing industry head-on and proposes solutions.

As my Texas colleague has said, the housing industry is in a steep decline as it faces a decreasing supply of construction financing. Aggravating the problem is an increasing inability to find buyers who can afford high prices and high mortgage interest rates.

The savings industry finds itself facing a high withdrawal rate as savers seek higher returns elsewhere, primarily in money market funds. This limits the money which normally would be available to finance mortgages on home construction.

H. R. 1005 addresses these problems by excluding from taxation the interest earned on deposits in financial institutions which are used for residential home mortgage purposes.

I fully agree that this tax exemption would not only give financial institutions a means by which to compete in the money markets for deposits, but would also increase the overall amount of funds available for home construction.

The Joint Economic Committee found in a study that the concept of tax free treatment of interest earned on savings deposits used for residential purposes would be beneficial. The proposal would, in the study's words, "produce a general economic boom."

It could create a million new jobs within a year of enactment, reducing unemployment by 1.1 percent. It could add 1.4 percent to the rate of real economic growth. The personal savings rate would rise.

At the same time, this boom would not be inflationary, largely because of increased savings and productivity, as well as the housing industry's ability to handle increased demand.

The National Association of Home Builders predicts that the legislation would spur the industry to meet demand for housing during the 1980's of approximately 1.9 million conventional units per year — at more reasonable interest rates.

It has been estimated that this legislation could create a domestic economic impact of $72.1 billion. I think that could be very helpful in getting our economy back in order.

some have begun to question whether the allies are carrying their share of the burden.

When these nations were relatively weak economically, the discrepancy in defense spending was tolerable, especially in the immediate post-war period when massive reconstruction efforts, supported by the U.S., were underway.

Now, the question is being asked in Congress and elsewhere of whether the allies have been benefiting economically from the security umbrella provided by the U.S. while not doing enough militarily.

The allies, of course, argue that they have been increasing their relative share of the burden over the years and continue to do so. They also say a variety of factors make simple measurement of their contributions misleading.

But there are some fundamental differences on the nature of the threat. Most Europeans and Japanese do not view the Soviet threat with the same degree of concern as do American observers.

The Reagan administration's policy is still emerging, but I think it would be safe to say the administration will try to convince the allies to improve their defense efforts. Some progress has already been made in this area, as has some progress been made in finding ways to reduce the cost of U.S. forces stationed abroad.

While Congress cannot "require" the allies to increase their defense efforts, it can encourage the administration to increase pressure on them to do just that. Often, the approach used is through appropriations measures or some means of expressing the sense of the Congress that the allies should contribute more to Western defense efforts.

Of course, these policies must be designed with an eye on specific circumstances in the allied countries and, at the same time, an eye on enhanced protection of U.S. interests.

NEWS
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

In a recent address to the Mississippi Economic Council, Governor William Winter called for a renewed emphasis on individual effort and education to make Mississippi competitive with other states in the struggle for economic development.

Noting that Mississippi has too many underproductive people, Winter called quality education a prerequisite to achieving higher per capita income and a better quality of life. Winter said that 6,000 Mississippi children failed to start school last year and another 15,000 dropped out of school. Winter asked, "What's going to keep them off the welfare rolls? What's going to keep them out of juvenile courts? What's going to keep them out of the state penitentiary?"

Winter said we must insure that these youngsters can become productive and contributing members of society and not wards of the state.

To help resolve these problems and increase the productivity of Mississippians, Winter called for the enactment of a statewide system of public kindergartens and strict compulsory school attendance.

"We cannot be competitive, we cannot get off the bottom economically without the education to make our citizens competitive and productive," Winter said. "We must invest our time and resources in training, educating and developing the skills of more of our people."

In remarks at a Jackson press conference recently Governor William Winter said raising the per capita income in Mississippi is dependent on strengthening educational instruction.

"Raising the income levels of our people is a primary goal of my administration," Winter said. "This hinges largely on increasing the productive level of our people through education. People will not earn higher incomes without the skills with which to earn those incomes."

"We still have too many people who have dropped out of school," Winter noted. "We have more high school dropouts than any other state. We still have too many underproductive, underskilled, undertrained and undereducated people."

"In concert with raising our standards of education it is imperative that we develop additional job opportunities in Mississippi," Winter continued. "I am working hard to convince businesses that Mississippi is a place where money can be invested and profits realized and effective work obtained from the people who are employed."

"To raise the per capita income of our people we must provide an additional investment capital. There is no magic about this. You can have a lot of high-sounding programs, slogans and public relations efforts. But real success will be based on raising the skills and productivity of our citizens through education and by attracting capital to create jobs. There are no shortcuts."

DUI offenders will attend mandatory alcohol safety class

The scene is typical. Officials say it's too typical.

A car swerves along a highway. The driver is drunk. Passengers in approaching vehicles are in danger. The highway becomes a jungle of jeopardy.

A 1981 amendment to the Implied Consent Act will tighten the control and increase the penalty for persons driving under the influence of alcohol. The amendment will go into effect July 1.

Unlike most states, Mississippi has had two charges for drunk driving. Driving while intoxicated (DWI) which was charged against persons with a .15 and higher blood-alcohol content has been abolished.

Only driving under the influence (DUI) will be charged in the future.

However, that charge will be placed against any person with a .10 and higher blood-alcohol content.

The recent legislation makes two penalties mandatory — a $200 fine and attendance and completion of Mississippi Alcohol Safety Education Program (MASEP) classes.

Failure to attend MASEP classes will result in a mandatory one-year suspension of driver's license.

Judges around the state should observe and implement this change in law. First offenders of DUI must be ordered to MASEP," explained Margaret Eatherly, director of MASEP which is housed at Mississippi State University. "Before this change in law, MASEP was a voluntary program. It is now mandatory for all first offenders."

A first offender is defined as any person who has received only one DUI charge and who has not been convicted of either two DUI, a DWI and/or a DUI-refused-chemical-test charges within the 24-month period preceeding the latest offense.

The legislation and MASEP are aimed at reducing the number of alcohol-related highway accidents. More than 2,000 students attended MASEP classes during 1980. "It is a fact that attendance at an alcohol safety education program teaches a person about the adverse effects of alcohol and reduces repetition of drunk driving behavior," said General Sidney Berry, commissioner of public safety.

"Lowering the amount of alcohol one can legally drink before driving and raising the penalty for drunk driving will help significantly in making our highways safer."

MASEP was established on a pilot-basis in 1972. In 1975, MASEP classes established on a pilot-basis in 1972. In 1975, MASEP classes were established in key locations throughout Mississippi. The classes are offered at a location approximately 40 miles from any person in the state.

Hancock County residents will attend classes in Gulfport. MASEP classes cover several areas including alcohol use and abuse, behavior modification and awareness, and driving safety.

Information regarding the Implied Consent Act and the process of a DUI arrest is given. In addition, a law enforcement officer serves as an assistant in each class.

"Our data shows that persons who complete MASEP classes are less likely to be arrested for a second DUI offense. We attempt to modify the drinking and driving behavior of those in MASEP. The end result is safer highways for people in our state," said Eatherly.

MASEP was developed at Mississippi State University by Dr. Gerald O. Windham, director of the University's Social Science Research Center. It has served as a model program for other states and was the first in the nation to be a centrally administered statewide program.

MASEP is self-supporting through fees charged to students.

Seashore Council elects

The Seashore Reading Council, an affiliate of the International and Mississippi Reading Associations, elected officers for fiscal year 1981-82.

Mrs. Edna Wilson, past president of the original Seashore Council, installed the following officers:

Mrs. Willie T. Carter, president; Mrs. Joanne Hultstrand, vice president; Dr. Nancy Masztal, vice president-elect; Mrs. Nell LaFrance, recording secretary; Mrs. Charlotte Thomas, corresponding secretary; Ms. Susan Hunt, nominating chairperson; and James Lockett, treasurer.

Standing committee chairpersons are Mrs. Kathy Smith, publicity-promotion; Mrs. Ame Oliver, hospitality; and Mrs. Mary Marcy, membership.

A special symposium, entitled, "The Six M's in Teaching Special Reading: Develop the Seventh M," was presented by Mrs. Selma Walker and Mrs. Ruth St. Onge, teachers at Gorenflo Elementary School in Biloxi.

They reported and demonstrated effective techniques used to develop the Seventh M—resulting in marked changes in student behavior.

Gifts to heirs can cut taxes

Preparing a will properly and keeping it updated is the only way to guarantee that your property will be distributed according to your wishes. Remember, however, that having a will does not reduce estate taxes.

Several alternatives are available to help reduce the estate taxes that will be levied on your estate. Giving gifts is one alternative.

The first rule to observe in giving gifts is: Do not give up income-producing property that may be needed for your own livelihood.

"Transfers are made to reduce larger estates and to benefit heirs, but not to hurt those who are transferring the property," said Dr. Robert Martin, economist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

An individual can give $3,000 in property, tax free, each year. A married couple can give $6,000. Cash or stocks are easy to give, but land and other property can be difficult.

"Control and title of the property must change to the recipient," Dr. Martin added. "The property given must be owned presently and not a gift of future interest."

Both gift property and estate property are taxed at the same rate. Every person has a unified credit of $47,000 that can be used to reduce federal gift taxes or federal estate taxes owed. "However, the amount used against gifts directly reduces the amount that can be used to reduce estate taxes," Dr. Martin said.

If you give property to your heirs now, it is available for their use. Any increase in value will be in their names. The increase from the time of the gift to the time of your death will be removed from your taxable estate.

Dr. Martin warns that a tax problem may develop if your heirs sell gift property. "A capital gains tax will be owed on the differences in the sale price and your cost," he said. "Up to $100,000 can be given to your spouse tax-free in your lifetime. If one spouse has a small estate, this helps balance the estate between the husband and the wife and reduces estate tax potential," he said.

But he warned, "If most of the estate passes to the surviving spouse, the estate taxes owed will be huge when this person dies. Their heirs would be responsible for taxes on the combined estate."

"All gifts, with the exception of the $3,000 annual exclusions, are taxed in the estate of the donor if the donor dies within three years of giving a gift," he warned.

SURVEYOR REPORTS—Paul T. O'Hargan of Craben-Thompson and Associates of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Friday describes survey locations in an ongoing Gulfport Chancery Court trial which will probably establish procedures to map waterfront property lines in Mississippi. Cinque Bambini Partnership of Hancock County hired O'Hargan and is principal plaintiff against the state in the court action. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Associates of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and a 'headlands' consideration in the public trust doctrine.

Headland claims of streams, lakes and bayous are based on ownership of land by one property owner surrounding an entire waterway.

The state is expected to base its property claim on a study and testimony by George Cole this week.

Mack Cameron, of the State Attorney General's office in Jackson, represents the state and is joined by Saga's Attorneys Boyce Holleman of Gulfport and Charles E. Harper of Jackson.

The local landowners are represented by Walter Phillips of Bay St. Louis; William Haynes of Houston, Tex.; and L. Arnold Pyle and Ernest Taylor, both of Jackson.

Phillips Petroleum attorneys are Joel Blass of Pass Christian; and Tim Jones, Elizabeth A. Harris and E.H. Brown, all of Houston.

O'Hargan was placed on the witness and Wednesday afternoon, continued his testimony all day Thursday and was cross-examined by defense attorneys the entire day Friday.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON THIRD DAY

The Bambini expert said tides in the disputed area were 'astronomic in nature' based on a July, 1979-survey which showed a low and high tide one day, two high and low tides another day, and four high and low tides on other days.

"The wind may have had an influence, but it didn't cause an additional tide," O'Hargan stated.

The marine boundary surveyor explained an extreme change in area tides would change the mean high water boundary mark.

He reported his involvement with Cinque Bambini began in May, 1979, at the request of the partnership's attorneys.

O'Hargan said he then began survey work and visited the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration's offices to view tide gauges and complete a scientific tide study of the property in question.

He noted that tide gauges placed along Jourdan River revealed varying numbers and heights of tides each day.

"This (tide variation) was caused by the tidal pulse entering from deep water in the Gulf of Mexico and hitting the shallow water shoals," O'Hargan reported.

"The wind didn't cause these tidal phenomena," he said.

O'Hargan explained that a grasslands study was also conducted along the Jourdan to determine differing bands of vegetation in an attempt to find the mean high water line.

THURSDAY THE FOURTH DAY

The marine surveyor revealed he referred to a national tidal epoch, which charts tides over a 19-year period, compiled from 1941-1959.

O'Hargan said when he was notified a new tidal epoch had been published for a 1960-1978 period the Bambini study was 'basically completed.'

He explained the epoch is compiled by the National Oceanographic Survey as a reference point in tidal surveys.

However, he noted that changes in computations from new epoch information would have been 'insignificant' in the Bambini study.

"The change was so slight that we felt it wouldn't make much difference in our computations of the mean high water line," O'Hargan stated.

The surveyor said the new epoch reflected a change of .07 feet which raised the mean high water level of Bayou LaCroix .02 feet and Jourdan River .03 feet.

O'Hargan told Holleman under cross examination that he would now utilize the new epoch for any future surveys.

But Blass noted, "At best, part of the current data is 20 years old. The most current epoch would be the last 18.6 years."

O'Hargan added that the 19-year epoch period was a man-made determination.

FRIDAY

Pyle presented two infrared aerial photographs, both of Mallini Bayou and adjoining Jourdan River.

O'Hargan explained the infrared technique was utilized because of its sharpness revealing 'tone and depth' with regard to various types of vegetation and 'targets' placed on the ground revealing the exact location of survey markers pinpointing the mean high water mark.

"Aerial photography was used to verify the shape of the mean high water line. Color infrared photography is the best tool because the colors are vivid," he reported.

Pyle then entered two of O'Hargan's 'field books' as evidence, but also asked the records be marked as 'proprietary and confidential' documents to only be viewed by the plaintiff's and defendant's attorneys and to be returned to the surveyor when the trial ended.

"This is an extremely valuable piece of work which could be picked up and used by other people," Pyle explained.

Holleman objected because "it's a document of the court and is unusual" to make such a request.

After Stewart admitted he had never received such a request, Pyle explained the procedure for recording such material and the judge allowed the documents as evidence.

O'Hargan then recounted a NOAA conference he attended along with Cole and several attorneys involved in both sides of the case.

"The purpose of the meeting was to describe how we planned mean high water surveys from start to finish," O'Hargan reported.

The marine surveyor testified that no one questioned his techniques or records.

When asked if any of the state's or Saga's attorneys questioned his work, Holleman objected and stated, "I wouldn't criticize him if he were wrong!"

Stewart sustained Holleman's objection.

Under cross examination by Cameron, O'Hargan explained he established a mean high tide mark by averaging all high tide levels.

"A survey of this type should use all high tides which is how it should be calculated by state law," O'Hargan said.

Cameron asked, "Would this be to the advantage of the landowner?"

O'Hargan replied, "It's not an advantage, it's what the landowners are due."

The state's attorney then asked the surveyor to identify drainage streams on an aerial photograph and O'Hargan said he found tidal influence in all those areas.

O'Hargan said he did not trace the tidal influence in these water areas because they were included in the original John J. Jourdan land grant survey of 1822.

He reported the original 1822 grant survey stakes were found during his work.

Holleman then asked O'Hargan if the ebb and flow of the tide was considered in his study, but after a flurry of objections by Blass and Pyle, Stewart recessed the proceedings for lunch.

After lunch O'Hargan explained, "You can't mix ebb and flow information when establishing a mean high water line."

Holleman then attempted to prove that O'Hargan was ordered to establish a property line at a certain point, but he replied, "Nobody orders or directs me without my agreement."

"If I didn't agree with your concept of a property line location, you would find a big note on my survey stating that fact," O'Hargan stated.

"There are no lands included within the property line below the mean high water mark, but there are lands in that area influenced by the ebb and flow of the tide," he explained.

O'Hargan reported if he were to chart all lands subject to the ebb and flow of the tide without regard to commercial use or navigability he would 'put a big disclaimer' on the study stating 'this is not the boundary line' indicating state ownership.

"I'm not going to decide property ownership," he said.

The marine surveyor reported he consulted with attorneys regarding the headland rule.

"I was trying to do a survey which would withstand the test of the courts," he explained.

Under further cross examination by Holleman, O'Hargan said he did not perform tide studies in Bayou Enciente or any other water area within the 'sovereign boundary line' of the Bambini property.

O'Hargan said the new epoch would not effect his study because he allowed the state an extra foot of property which easily 'covers the correct amount of land.'

When further questioned by Blass, O'Hargan said, "The boundary line meets the criteria of the new tidal epoch."

The marine surveyor also reported the Earth's tides have been rising about two inches per 200 years, but some experts feel the earth's sea levels may start subsiding.

O'Hargan estimated the completed Bambini study cost just over $100,000. He said current tide tables are compiled based on Pensacola, Fla. gauge readings and noted, "It's one fine system."

The marine surveyor also noted that soon the entire 'global system' regarding tide measurements will be readjusted because space age technology is allowing more precise calculations.

O'Hargan reported he recently performed a survey for the State of New Jersey, which claims all lands influenced by the ebb and flow of the tides.

"The New Jersey wetland map we made is for inventory purposes. Every waterfront property case in that state has to be litigated or negotiated. It's a chaotic situation," he explained.

Pyle requested, "We ask again, once more, for the state and Saga to provide additional information that Cole has been preparing for some time and particularly the boundary line description as he maintains it to be."

Cameron stated, "He's still working on this and hopefully this afternoon will be finished."

The court recessed until 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Bergeron Marine stages annual crawfish festival

There was no evidence that crawfish was scarce this season when Bergeron Marine, Inc. held its fourth annual crawfish bash at Port Bienville.

Bergeron employees and guests consumed nearly one ton of boiled "mudbugs," along with several kegs of beer and cases of soft drinks. Good fellowship prevailed and everyone had a super time, the company reported.

Prior to the start of festivities, Bergeron Industries' President William T. Bergeron praised the accomplishments and performance of the company's Port Bienville employees.

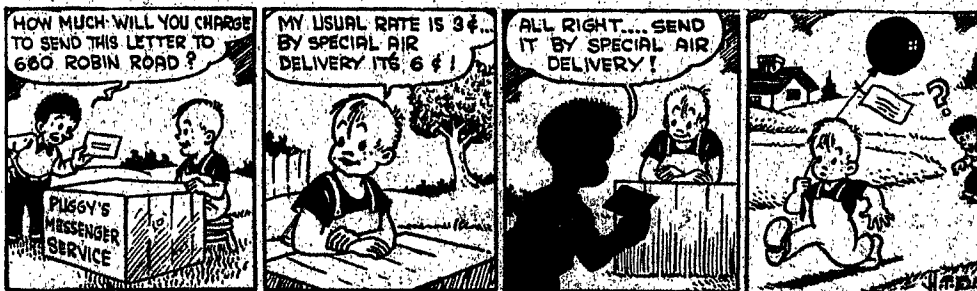

Bergeron also reported that the company's volume of sales and contractual backlog continues to grow. Safety and attendance awards were presented by Ira V. Michel Jr., vice president — production, and Jack Golemon, manager of Bergeron's Port Bienville Marine Facility.

LaFontaine, Carver exchange vows

Micki Ann Carver and Lawrence Monroe LaFontaine III were united in marriage Saturday, June 13 at St. William's Catholic Church in Delisle with Rev. John Mc-Spirit officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carver of Bay St. Louis. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Larry LaFontaine Jr. of Pass Christian.

The 2 p.m. double ring ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with apricot and white silk roses and gladioli.

Nuptial music was provided by Tom Bourdin of Pass Christian, organist.

Given in marriage by her brother, Michael Carver, the bride wore a formal gown of white bridal tulle fashioned with scooped neckline, sheer cap sleeves and empire bodice accented with heavy venise lace. The slender skirt swept to a chapel length wattleau train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held by a Juliet headpiece of venise lace and pearls and featured a scalloped border of pearls.

She carried a cascade of white roses and baby's breath with ribbon streamers.

Suzanne Adams of Waveland was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Maryanne Adams of Waveland; Sherryel Cuevas of Pass Christian; Shelby LaFontaine of Pass Christian, sister of the groom; and Robin Ladner of Pass Christian, cousin of the bride.

The attendants wore formal gowns of rainbow colors featuring pleated skirt and spaghetti strap bodice covered with a sheer capelet. They each carried a long stemmed rose to complement the color of their dress.

Keith Cuevas of Pass Christian, cousin of the groom, was best man.

Groomsmen were Davey Ladner, Earl Cuevas and Kelvin Cuevas, all of Pass Christian and cousins of the groom; and Rodney LaFontaine of Pass Christian, brother of the groom.

Ushers were Joseph Carver of Metairie, La., brother of the bride; and Mike LaFontaine of Lakeshore, uncle of the groom.

Miss Lisa Penton of Lakeshore, cousin of the groom, was flower girl.

Matthew Carver of Bay St. Louis, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The mother of the groom was attired in a lace trimmed jade green dress featuring V-neckline and full length sleeves.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Kiln Veterans of Foreign Wars hall.

The bride's table was framed with a bridal arch decorated with rainbow roses, sweet peas and fern and held a wedding cake which featured a water fountain.

Assisting at the reception were Laura Ladner, Janelle Ladner, Patsy Cuevas, and Carolyn Cuevas, all of Pass Christian.

Also Richard Cuevas, Nolan Cuevas, Keith Necaise, Ricky Ladner, Mike Ladner, Cheryl and Carson Ladner.

For traveling to Pensacola Beach, Fla. the bride chose a two piece printed dress of apricot eyelet edged in ruffled lace.

The couple will reside in Pass Christian.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Tony Wilkens and Nita Kay and Rose Ann Wilkens, all of Jackson; John Carver of Crystal Springs; and Jane Thornton of Kenner, La.

AAA offers guide for handicapped

The American Automobile Association's "The Handicapped Driver's Mobility Guide" is now available through AAA offices in Louisiana and Mississippi.

The 75-page book features information about traveling aids for disabled persons and gives advice on how to select special equipment for cars and vans.

The revised 1981 edition lists more than 550 resource agencies. Each offers some type of transportation service to the handicapped.

Specialist lists silver care tips

Silver is one valuable possession that actually improves with age. The buildup of small scratches from daily use can give silver flatware the deep mellow tone of fine antiques.

But all silver, regardless of age or value, looks best with a glimmering shine rather than a dull tarnish. "Tarnish is removed easily with special polishes," says Sarah Fountain, home furnishings specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Two precautions are necessary: the type of polish chosen and the manner in which it is applied," Miss Fountain adds. "Silver should never be polished with a compound containing abrasives, and antique silver should not be polished frequently or rubbed vigorously."

Several fine commercial silver polishes are available. If there is doubt about the correct polish to use, ask a jeweler.

Silver does not require polishing after every use. But when the time comes to bring back its shine, the rubbing should be brisk, but not heavy. "Always rub in the same direction," Miss Fountain says. "After polishing, the silver should be washed in warm soapy water and gently dried."

If silver is to be stored, place it in a bag of tarnish-resistant cloth or in drawers or chest lined with this material. Silver pieces should not be held together with rubber bands, or even touch them. Silver can become etched so deeply by doing this that only a silversmith can repair the damage.

If silver is to be stored for a long period, wrap the cleaned silver in several layers of clean, new white tissue paper and then cover it with anti-tarnish paper.

The Sea Coast Echo Religion

Self-Improvement Dept.

By Tom Hopkins

The average human being has the ability to achieve almost anything. Lack of basic capability is rarely the problem, but rather finding out what you want and being willing to sacrifice, change and grow to satisfy the want.

In the sales training seminars I conduct throughout the country, I teach a 20-step system of goal setting to help people achieve their wants and I firmly believe it can be applied to all walks of life. Here it is:

1. If it's not in writing, it's not a goal. An unwritten want is a wish, a dream, a never-happen. If it's in writing, it's a commitment.

2. If it's not specific, it's not a goal. Broad desires and lofty aims have no effect. It must be concrete.

3. Goals must be believable. If you don't believe you can achieve a goal, you won't pay the price for it.

4. An effective goal is an exciting challenge. It must demand your best and a bit more or it isn't going to change your ways and elevate your lifestyle.

5. Goals must be adjusted to new information. Adjust them down if they become unbelievable or up if they're too easy.

6. Dynamic goals guide our choices. If you want it badly enough, you'll turn off the TV and get to it.

Goals will show you the right way to go on most decisions.

7. Don't set short-term goals for more than 90 days. If you set a short-term goal that takes more than 90 days, you may lose interest.

8. Maintain a balance between long-term and short-term goals. Long-term goals tend to be hidden in a fog of the future, so have some short-term goals—like clothes, cars, vacations—to keep your excitement up.

9. Include your loved ones in your goals. Involve them and they'll back you up when you need encouragement.

10. Set goals in all areas of your life. Have other goals besides career objectives.

11. Your goals must harmonize. Whenever you detect a conflict, set priorities.

that will eliminate the conflict.

12. Review your goals regularly. Remember, long-term goals can only be achieved if they are the culmination of short-term goals.

13. Set vivid goals. Define not only what you want but by when you want it, and concentrate on it for a few moments every day.

14. Don't chisel your goals in granite. Sometimes you have to change goals to conform to your growing awareness of what's really important in your life.

15. Reach out into the future. The idea of goal-setting is to plan your life rather than taking it as it comes.

Begin by setting 20-year goals. Then 10-year, five-year, 30-month, 12-month, monthly, weekly and finally goals for tomorrow and each day for the coming week.

16. Have a set of goals for every day, and review results each night.

17. Train yourself to crave your goals. Visualize yourself possessing what you've set your goals for.

18. Set activity goals, not production goals. Activity will lead to production by itself.

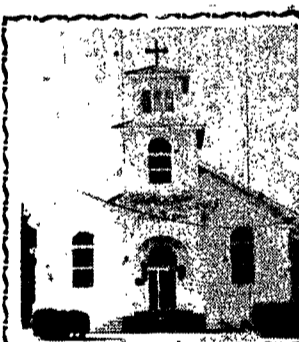

19. Understand luck, and make it work for you. Expect good things to happen, and they probably will.

20. Start now. Give goal-setting two hours of concentrated thought today. Then set aside 10 minutes a day for the next 21 days to review and revise. After that, two minutes a day and one hour a week is all it will take to keep you on track.

Try this system if you want to achieve your goals and within 21 days you'll be well on your way to an immensely greater and richer future.

Dianne Tenney makes distinguished list

The Society of Distinguished American High School Students announced today that a student from First Baptist Church, Waveland is to be included in its membership for 1981.

The Society, one of the most selective high school honoraries in America today, accepts only students nominated by their sponsors. To be nominated, students must excel in academics, extracurricular, or civic activities.

Student awarded this honor include Ms. Dianne Tenney, Waveland.

The student's sponsor, First Baptist Church, received a National Appreciation Award from the society for "being dedicated to the encouragement and assistance of students." One of the Society's goals is to make membership an encouragement for top performance on the secondary school level.

Unique in concept, the Society has combined this honor with its national awards program which earmarks college scholarships for society members.

This program, now in its thirteenth year, is funded by more than 100 American colleges.

It also preserves the honor by listing the students and their biographies in an annual membership registry.

There's an Answer!

Wife has tantrums

Q. My problem is my wife. Her jealousy is nerve-wrecking. In my business I come in contact with a lot of people, females among them.

Numerous fights are a result of this, and it is deeply hurting the both of us. She always has these tantrums about incidents which are weeks old, and I hate to see this happening to her. Please help me. My business, my life, are near shambles.

A. Jealousy usually rises out of feelings of insecurity. Do you give your wife cause to feel that she is the most important person in the world to you? Do you compliment her often, show pride in her accomplishments and appreciation for all she does?

Try to remember how you courted her and again be as attentive as you once were. Include her in your life as much as possible. Chances are she'll no longer feel threatened by your business associations.

We are sending you our booklet, Help Yourself With God's Help which is free to any reader. Write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N. Y. 12564. Young but feels old

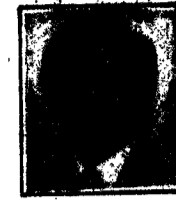

Q. I am a lonely, unmarried 24 year old female. I was raised with the view that sex should be reserved for marriage. But most guys these days go for the swinging type. Guys call but once they find out where my head is that's the end. They never accept me for who I am. I feel so old when I'm young. I'm always depressed. I feel people might get the wrong idea about me and think I don't like men. I really do want to marry and have children and have asked God to send me a special companion. Please help me.

A. We get letters from men asking the same question. They want the type of girl you are. And they, and you, are so smart in having such ideas and standards.

How bright is it to let some character, who only wants a sex experience, use you?

DRUG QUIZ

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.

QUESTION - Which of the following groups has the highest rate of drug addiction?

- Professional athletes
- Doctors and nurses
- Lawyers
- School administrators and teachers

ANSWER - Doctors and nurses have far higher rates of drug addiction than have all other groups of professionals says a report from the Texas Research Institute of Medical Sciences, Houston. Sandra K. Stickney, chief nurse at the institute's clinical research unit, says that addiction has been reported in approximately one out of 400 physicians. This compares to addiction rates among the general population of one out of 4,000.

Generally, accessibility to narcotics appears to be a key factor to addiction, but overwork, chronic fatigue, insomnia, professional frustrations, and domestic or marital instability also are cited as causes. Ms. Stickney notes that, though outcomes vary (from 27% to 92%), the professional's recovery rate is much higher than the accepted 5% to 15% for the "typical" abuser.

Correct answer - b.

QUESTION - What are Qualudes or Sopers?

- Barbiturates
- Amphetamines
- Sedative-hypnotics
- Hallucinogens

ANSWER - Qualudes and Sopers are brand names for the non-barbiturate sedative hypnotic Methaqualone. The street name is "Intellectual Heroin." The drug is usually prescribed for patients who need help in sleeping but whose systems contradict barbiturates.

Physical and mental effects usually begin within 10 to 30 minutes and last from 6 to 8 hours. These effects range from sedation and muscle relaxation, slowed responses, and drowsiness to headache, amnesia, coma, and death. Twenty Sopers can kill a person; when taken with any other depressant - such as alcohol - Sopers become 2 to 10 times as dangerous.

The drug produces strong physical dependence (addiction), and withdrawal often is more difficult than from heroin or barbiturates.

Correct answer - c.
